Ministerial-Level Roundtable on Efficient Governance Frameworks for Small and Structurally Constrained States

Advancing Scalable Public Systems through Strategic Replication and Transregional Dialogue.

Date: July 11, 2025

Venue: United Nations Headquarters – Room [TBD]

Time: 3:00 PM – 4:45 PM

Background

In an increasingly complex global environment, small and underrepresented nations are often burdened by governance models and development strategies that are either too costly, inefficient, or misaligned with their scale and realities. The Council of Global Change (CGC) was founded with the belief that efficient nations are not those that spend more — but those that adopt, adapt, and replicate what already works.

As part of its structural mission, CGC is proud to announce the creation of its Permanent Observer Mission to the Central American Parliament (PARLACEN) — a new platform from which CGC will support policy innovation, institutional cooperation, and the practical transfer of tested models across regions.

This event will explore how replication of successful governance and development structures can reduce time, cost, and risk for small nations, and how CGC is enabling this across continents, starting with Central America and the Pacific Islands.

Purpose of the Session

- To formally present the CGC–PARLACEN alliance as a vehicle for:
- Advancing structural efficiency through model replication
- Connecting small nations from different regions
- Facilitating the transfer of proven frameworks across similar environments

- Promoting public-private cooperation without bureaucratic burden

Key Themes for Discussion

1. How to replicate efficient systems in small and underdeveloped nations: Practical examples of how simplified legal, educational, and economic models from one country can serve another with similar characteristics.
2. Strategic alignment: Small States, Big Opportunities: Exploring the untapped power of collaboration between geographically distant but structurally aligned nations (e.g., Kiribati and Guatemala).
3. CGC as a neutral bridge for scalable transformation: How CGC's Observer Mission to PARLACEN can serve as a replicable structure for engaging other regional parliaments and blocs.
4. A governance model based on replication, not reinvention: Why copy-adapt-scale may be the most realistic path to impact for countries with limited budgets and overstretched institutions.
5. Efficiency diplomacy: building a more agile multilateralism: The importance of creating lean, replicable, action-oriented cooperation mechanisms — as demonstrated in CGC's model.

Confirmed High-Level Participants

- H.E. Mr. Teburoro Tito, Permanent Representative of Kiribati to the United Nations
- Mr. David Xavier Sánchez, Secretary-General, Council of Global Change
- H.E. Mr. Carlos Hernández, President of the Central American Parliament (PARLACEN)
- H.E. Mr. Carlos García, Former Ambassador of the Permanent Mission of El Salvador to the United Nations

Expected Outcomes

- Public announcement of CGC's Permanent Observer Mission to PARLACEN.
- Proposal for a "Replicable Governance Compact" under CGC, linking countries across regions with shared structural conditions.

- Commitments from small states to explore peer-learning exchanges on policy frameworks, youth initiatives, and digital systems.
- Outline of CGC's plan to replicate the PARLACEN model with other regional parliaments (e.g., Caribbean, Pacific).
- Launch of a Transregional Dialogue Series led by CGC, with initial focus on Central America and the Pacific.

Target Audience

- Permanent Missions to the United Nations
- Regional parliamentary blocs (PARLACEN, CARICOM, Pacific Regional Bodies)
- Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Development, Innovation
- Intergovernmental Organizations
- Development Banks and Philanthropic Institutions
- Think Tanks and Governance Experts
