UNHQs, Conference room #12

INVITATION

Aviation Security contribution to the prevention and response to the evolving global terrorism landscape

Terrorist threats to civil aviation are growing in complexity, with new modus operandi such as digital means and unmanned aircraft systems (UAS), as well as a broader range of perpetrators. The civil aviation sector adapts to the evolving global threat landscape by changing the security mindset from a reactive security paradigm to a proactive one that supports the resilience of civil aviation's critical infrastructure against existing, new, and evolving threats.

In partnership with ICAO, UNCTED and UNOCT, this side event focuses on showcasing ongoing cooperation between ICAO, UNCTED, UNOCT and other Global CT Compact entities to enhance the coordination and coherence in promoting the implementation of aviation security and the delivery of capacity building and technical support to Member States.

The in-person side event will take place on the margins of the Third United Nations Counter-Terrorism Week at the United Nations Headquarters in New York, Conference Room 12, on Friday, 23 June, from 13:15-14:30 EDT.
